

JAMES NEILL ON STOCK COMPANIES

Tells How Blanch Bates Sold Theater Tickets in Denver.

SOME ACTORS' EXPERIENCES.

Veteran Who Opened the Grand Theater in This City in 1894 Tells Some Stories.

James Neill, the veteran actor for whom the Grand theater was built on Second South by Jay Rogers and associates in 1894, and who is now in vaudeville, was in a reminiscent mood this morning. Mr. Neill is among the pioneers of western stock companies and in his time has handled many embryo stars. At the Orpheum this morning he told incidents in the careers of people who have been in his companies, including the following galaxy: Blanche Bates, Julia Arthur, Madge Carr Cooke, Henrietta Crossman, Eleanor Robson, Mary Tampton, Belle Archer, Jane Kenmark, Arnold Daly, Sando Miliken, Robert Drouet, Daniel Fraxley, Harry Carson Clark, Mary Elizabeth Forbes, Walter Clark Bellows, Howard Kyle, Eugene Ormond.

He is one of the veteran actors of the west, and when one hears him tell of the stage folk he has played with one almost wonders at his memory and experiences. Yet he looks youthful and the years have been kind to him.

This is not his first visit to Salt Lake, for he has played here a number of times. Back in the early eighties he appeared in the Salt Lake theater when Phil Margette was in his prime.

He was the founder of the modern stock company and for the last 13 years one of its most successful exponents, both in the line of the drama and the more meritorious one of good and abiding art.

There had been many summer stock companies before the excellent time in 1892 when he took a little theater in Denver at the modest rental of $30 a week and proposed to operate it as a stock company house during the regular season. He, himself, had played for two years in Denver in hot weather companies and since the time that the present star system came into vogue and passed a sponge over the old time stock companies there had always been these summer snaps. But this Denver venture was the first to revive the good old stock company.

HIS DENVER VENTURE.

This Denver venture was inspired by Mr. Neill's popularity there. Two seasons with the impulsive theatergoers of that breezy town had made him a great favorite and so when a young fellow named R. L. Giffen, came to him with a proposition to join forces in a stock company during the winter season Mr. Neill was taken with the scheme. Each had $150 and with this joint capital salary in the bank, Mr. Neill went to New York and engaged a compact and clever little company whose members knew the extent of his purse, but were willing to take a chance with him. They didn't suffer, nor, so he says, has any actor who ever played with him. Somehow or other, even when the business was terribly bad, the "ghost always walked."

These players of the first company were more than mere actors; they were friends and comrades and helpers. They turned in and assisted him with that generosity of deed as well as money that is characteristic of the actor. Things went against us for a time," said Mr. Neill smiling tenderly over the memory. "Blood-to-the-brides" Waite was then a candidate for re-election to the governorship and the campaign was the bitterest ever known. That pulled all the men away. The women were allowed to vote for the first time and the novelty of the act made them forget their old love, the theater. We played to wretched business, but throughout it all I never let a salary day go by. I got nothing, neither did Mr. Giffen, but he was a clerk in a business house and had that salary to live upon. But I was penniless. I ate and slept and not in the open air. But that was all I knew I was an old frayed tie on the stage for over a month because I had no money to get a new one.

BLANCHE BATES SOLD TICKETS.

"I ran the theater just as cheaply as I could. Fortunately, salaries were low then. The stage was small and only needed four stage hands. Then we had no hired person in the front of the house to sell tickets. The actors used to take it during the daytime and then Mr. Giffen would be at the light. 'Tim' Frawley, who always was an early riser, would be in the box office at 8 o'clock in the morning to open up and would stay until the end of the longer sleepers would come to relieve him. He would put in the time studying his part, for the interruptions I'm sorry to say, were not frequent. Then perhaps I would come to his rescue. And anyone not needed a short time at rehearsals would take his trick at selling tickets until his cue came. Even the ladies of the company would help and many a time Blanche Bates had sat in the box office and munched her lunch while the Archer, too, would also assist. In fact, if I were to tell of the kind-hearted people who turned in to help me out of the hole, I would have to give you the roster of the entire company."

With this as a starting point, Mr. Neill gave the history of the renaissance of the stock company in America, or at least his share of it. Others profited by his success and there is not a town of any consequence in the land but that has had its season of stock to entertain and educate it. At first Mr. Neill engaged new players frequently, but at the last he built up a company which holds the world's record for continuous existence. For five years and six months the same players were with him.

But Mr. Neill's was a traveling company. It would stay in one town for two or three months or less, and then strike and away to another on the list. In this way he covered the territory of the west and northwest very thoroughly until his name was a household word, and his word as good as his money.

TRAVELING ON CREDIT.

"Why, to this day I could travel with my company from St. Paul to Honolulu, which was the extent of our route, without a cent. Railways, steamships, conductors and everyone would trust me if I so desired."

It is different playing in the west than in the east. We are a part of the life of the community. They grow fond of us personally aside from liking our performances. We had friends everywhere. The porters and conductors on the train knew us from our frequent trips. We had the same rooms in the hotels. We employed the same cabmen every time. Even the newspaper had this affectionate feeling for the actors over the old time stock companies there had always been these summer snaps. But this Denver venture was the first to revive the good old stock company.

BOY BRUISED ONLY.

Reason Keyser's Injuries Not Serious, Although Painful.

Reason Keyser, the little fellow who was brought into the jail hospital yesterday suffering from the effects of a bad bicycle fall, was found to be not seriously injured. His hands and arms were scraped and his right side badly bruised, but no bones were broken.

KEYSER DELIVERING FOR THE VAN DYKE DRUG STORE YESTERDAY.

Keyser was delivering for the Van Dyke drug store yesterday, and as expected he was killed in one of the front wheel caught in the car tracks at the west end of the O. S. L. viaduct, throwing the boy over the handlebars onto the rocky road. He was picked up and carried into a house nearby.

THE LITTLE FELLOW WAS GAME AND DID NOT WHIMPER WHILE WAITING FOR THE PATROL BOY DURING THE RIDE TO THE POLICE HOSPITAL.

He had an idea several ribs were broken. "There's a hoodoo after me," he smiled coming up town. "I just got over a bad case of blood poisoning, the stitches were just taken out yesterday. I went to work Monday and here I am all scraped to pieces." When Dr. Paul, city physician, had concluded his examination, he said, "dammy, you'll be all right in a few days."

"Good!" exclaimed the youngster enthusiastically. "I thought it was a sure go this time." He was then taken to his home on First and I streets.

A. M. CANNON IMPROVING.

President Angus M. Cannon was not so well last night, but he improved this morning, and this afternoon, is feeling quite comfortable.

EXPLOSION CAUSE OF DAMAGE SUIT

John J. Spencer Claims He Sustained Great Loss by Blowing Up of Dynamite.

OCCURRED NEAR HOT SPRINGS

Railroad Company Held Responsible For Damage to His Furniture and House in Sum of $3,109.75.

The terrific explosion of giant powder in box cars near Beck's Hot Springs on July 2 is the cause of a damage suit being filed in the district court today by John J. Spencer against the Oregon Short Line Railroad company, to recover damages in the total sum of $3,109.75 for injuries to plaintiff's house and furniture. Spencer alleges that the company permitted four cars of powder to stand on its tracks inside the city limits for many hours which is contrary to the city ordinances. The powder caught fire and exploded and wrecked plaintiff's house and furniture. All the windows, curtains and blinds in the house were ruined, the chairs were broken, carpets ruined and the walls and plastering of the house were also greatly damaged.

DEATH OF MRS. WILCOCK.

Wife of Charles Wilcock Passes Away At Her Family Residence.

Mrs. Eliza R. Wilcock, wife of Charles Wilcock, died last evening at the family residence, 605 Seventh East street, from rheumatism and general debility. The deceased had been a sufferer for many years, and she bore with the greatest patience and forbearance the ravages of the disease of those who witnessed what she passed through. This trait, with many other noble qualities of heart and mind, endeared her to all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance.

Mrs. Wilcock was born at Neustadt, Holstein, Germany, March 1, 1831, and was the daughter of Fred and Dorothea Reich. She came to Utah in 1862, not being a member of the Church at that time. She was subsequently baptized in the old mill pond at Liberty Fork, Elder Brigham Young performing the ordinance. Mr. Wilcock came to Utah as a soldier in Johnston's army in 1867, but he, too, became a Latter-day Saint.

Mrs. Wilcock is survived by her husband and six children, five daughters and one son; namely, Mrs. Dora Pratt, Mrs. Bertha Smith, Mrs. Minnie Eakle, Mrs. May Cannon and Mrs. Emma Williams. The funeral will be held from the First ward meetinghouse, Sunday, commencing at 3:30 o'clock.

BACK FROM N. G. U. CAMP.

Col. Kesler Reports Boys in Blue to Be in Fine Fettle.

Col. Kesler of the governor's staff is up from the national guard camp. He reports the attitude of the local people toward the soldiers as of the kindest character. The citizens are sending two wagons of drinking water daily to the camp, as the local water supply is not very good for drinking, besides showing much other interest in the boys, being by way of reciprocity, the commanding officer has invited President Chapman of the Pacific coast and other prominent citizens to meet with the officers at the camp, and the visitors will be met by the band and a regimental parade given in their honor.

METHODIST CONVENTION.

Divines Indulge in Decorous Levity at Intervals During Session.

All is not of the extreme serious vein in the proceedings of the Methodist convention, now convened in this city, and which opened its second day's session this morning. For instance, Bishop Neeley, who presides over the deliberations of the body, has a good natured, even jovial, vein running through his nature, and by reason of this fact a spirit of amusement and sometimes applause are occasioned among the delegates. In speaking of Rev. D. W. Crane, who goes from Ogden to a new field in Hawaii, the bishop said that had he known what manner of man Mr. Crane was, he would gladly have given him a sea air in South America, rather than in the Pacific. The sentiment that pleased the congregation.

EXTENDING AN INVITATION TO VISITING DELEGATES TO TAKE A TRIP TO SALT LAKE ON SATURDAY.

That among other attractions there was the greatest dancing pavilion in the world. He smilingly made the remark and the audience good-naturedly applauded the saying.

To begin the exercises this morning, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered by Bishop Neeley, after which a somewhat extended business meeting was held. The character of each preacher in the jurisdiction was taken up, considered and passed upon. Then followed a resolution of Rev. J. Talbot, D. D., superintendent of the Utah missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, who made a brief address on the subject of insurance. A peculiarity of the church is that a company of its own organization looks after the insurance of the various churches and other buildings.

Rev. D. W. Crane asked to be excused during the morning session, as he and his family leave tonight for his new field. He made a feeling farewell address, in which he eulogized the members of his late pastorate in Ogden, and said that the church there was one of the best churches in the world.

Quite a lengthy report was made by Mrs. B. S. Potter, general secretary of the Women's Home Missionary Society of Utah. Her report was one of the various towns in Utah where the work is being carried on. Mrs. Potter is an eloquent speaker, and her remarks were listened to with the greatest attention, and at the close she received a hearty round of applause.

The doing of the convention are carried on in the most business-like manner. Chairman Neeley proving himself worthy of the reputation he has long enjoyed, that of being one of the ablest presiding officers in his church.

This evening a banquet will be tendered to the visiting delegates by Dr. and Mrs. Talbot and Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Young. The function will take place in the church parlors.

COURSE IN MANUAL TRAINING.

Salt Lake High School Opens New Department.

The manual training department of the High School will this year be greatly advanced in efficiency by the addition of a 4-year course in mechanical arts. Superintendent of Manual Training, Barrett, has arranged a course in that line which will enable a graduate of the department to qualify for any technical school in the country. It is expected that the new course will please a large number of students who desire to qualify in higher institutions in such vocations as engineering, architecture, etc. In addition to the regular 4-year courses heretofore offered, consisting of classical, scientific, English, modern languages, and commercial. The course in manual training in mechanical arts follows:

First year—first half—English, 3; algebra, 3; geometry, 3; shop work, 3; total points, 12. Second year—first half—English, 3; algebra, 3; geometry, 3; shop work, 3; total points, 12. Third year—first half—English, 3; algebra, 3; geometry, 3; shop work, 3; total points, 12. Fourth year—first half—English, 3; algebra, 3; geometry, 3; shop work, 3; total points, 12.

For the first and second years a language is suggested as an optional study. The shop work of the first year will include joinery, elementary cabinet work, and the work of the second year will cover cabinet work, some pattern making and finishing. In the third year the student will be provided with a well equipped forge room and foundry for the work of the third year students. Besides this, the third year's work will include pattern making of more advanced nature. The fourth year's work will include the work of the second year. A machine shop for the use of fourth year mechanical art students is being built. This building is open to students who have satisfactorily completed the work, including manual training, of the elementary schools.

TURNED TO MILKY WAY.

Display at Third South Not Provided For in Astronomical.

There was a display of the Milky Way at noon today at Third South and Main streets, for which no provision was made in the astronomical, and entirely outside of the domain of stellar physics. A display of the Milky Way was made by Mr. H. B. Smith, who was in the company of an automobile passing by. He was more than the milk wagon steers could subscribe to, and they struck off a side pole, smashing the pole and doubletires, and turning the wagon upside down. The driver escaped with one of the horses, while the other became tangled up and hung there until cut away. The wagon was not particularly damaged outside of the running gears, but the big cans were pretty well dented up.

President Joseph E. Robinson, of the California mission, arrived in Salt Lake at 3:30 o'clock this morning, having in charge the remains of Elder William C. Espin, who died last Sunday morning at Oakland. Tomorrow morning Mr. Robinson will accompany the body to the late home of the deceased, in the R. G. W. to Marysville, and thence 310 miles by team to Orderville, Kane county.

Elder Espin was taken ill Friday, August 23, while on his way to the grip, he having contracted a cold by watching at the bedside of an aged sick woman. His condition became so serious that a doctor was called in, and he in turn called in a consulting physician, and the malady was pronounced to be pneumonia. The next day, however, some untimely death came at the time stated.

Elder Espin had been in the California mission nine months and two days, and was a very successful and hard worker. He labored in Los Angeles and Oakland. He is survived by a wife and a babe, the latter four months old.

FEAR BLIGHT MYSTERY.

George Taylor of Miller Claims to Have Discovered Cause.

George Taylor, a veteran farmer and fruit raiser of Miller, Salt Lake county, takes issue with some of his fellow growers as to the cause and effect of fear blight. In venting his opinion on the subject, Mr. Taylor said:

"A short time ago I received a visit from the fruit tree inspectors who ordered me to cut down some of my year trees, as they were suffering from blight. I asked the deputy what was the cause of the blight. He said he did not know, and that it would be worth $100,000 to him if he did know. I told him I believed the cause of the blight was in the soil, and he disagreed with me. The trees have started to decay. If one root becomes thus impaired, it will manifest itself in some branch of the tree, and the more roots that are affected, the more the top will suffer. If all the roots are destroyed, the tree will die, and nothing can save it. In 99 cases out of 100 the trees do not die from the top downward, but the trouble lies with the root. It is a fallacy to say that fear blight, as it is called, is the cause of the blight. It is, when the cause is from 18 inches to two feet below the surface of the ground."

"Now for the cause. The reason is found in too much irrigation. The spring water such a wet season that the ground became thoroughly soaked. The weather remained cold so long that the roots of trees started to decay. With the approach of the rains, the roots of the pear tree go down almost perpendicularly, and when they reach a subsoil that is not conducive to their growth, the results are shown in the branches."

HOTEL GOSSIP.

D. Worth Clark dropped into town this morning from Pocatello, and registered at the Kenyon.

R. E. Thompson and wife of Albuquerque, New Mexico, are guests of the Kenyon hotel. Mr. Thompson is a wealthy sheep owner.

Thomas B. Crawford, accompanied by Mrs. Crawford and their two daughters, is registered at the Kenyon. The visitors reside in Denver.

P. W. Olson and wife and two sons of Cokeville, Wyo., are registered at the Wilson hotel, having come down for a number of years. Nearly every body in Cokeville and the surrounding parts is more or less interested in sheep, there being scarcely a ranch or cattle raising in the years gone by. Cattle raising was the principal industry, but now the rearing of sheep has taken the place of the other enterprise. Cokeville is on Bear river, about 10 miles from the town of Montpelier, and is near the Utah line. In fact, Wyoming, Idaho and Utah touch each other at a point but a few miles outside the town.

Too high a price is being paid for the raising of any kind of fruits, and only the most hardy kinds of grain (wheat) there. Late frosts this year killed most of the grain and oats. Leaving the hay crop as the main source of revenue, so far as the soil is concerned. The second crop of alfalfa is not up to the standard, but other hay will yield in abundance.

But he is confident that information will come later on, to form the basis of a suit in court for the dissolution of the Butchers and Grocers' association.

Bill Objected To—An item of $16 for lemons for the inmates of the State Industrial school as contained in the bill of B. H. Evans & Co. of Ogden, was objected to by Gov. Cutler at the meeting of the state board of examiners a few days ago on the ground that the amount was excessive. Mr. Evans is a member of the board of trustees of the industrial school and is by law prohibited from selling any supplies whatever to the institution over which he exercises more or less control. The total amount of his bill for July was $150.45.
